Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election of Group II in the reply filed on December 23, 2004 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)). Accordingly, claims 30-36 withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on December 23, 2004.

Specification

The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: a pinch judgment means for reading the motor load value of the sampling region corresponding to a predetermined door position in advance of the present door position in a door movement direction by a predetermined region for calculating a forecast value of the motor load value forecasted relating to the door movement direction based on the motor load value of the sampling region corresponding to the predetermined door position and the motor load value of the present door position. It appears that specification fails to mention the use of the motor load value of the present door position in determining the forecast value of the motor load.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 37-42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Recitations such as “each sampling region that is address-appointed by a position detected by the position detection means” on lines 10-11 of claim 37 render the claims indefinite because it is unclear what the applicant is attempting to set forth. What comprises a sampling region? What parameters define a sampling region? What is an address appointment? It is suggested that the applicant more clearly define what comprises a sampling region to better define the invention and to overcome 35 USC 112 informalities. Recitations such as “the motor load value” on line 16 of claim 37 render the claims indefinite because it is unclear if the applicant is referring to the newly detected motor load value or to the “old” motor load value.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 37-42, as best understood by the examiner, would be allowable if rewritten or amended to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record, absent applicant's own disclosure, fails to teach the entire combination of elements set forth in the claimed invention. Specifically, the prior art of record fails to teach a pinch judgment means for reading the motor load value of the sampling region corresponding to a predetermined door position in advance of the present door position in a door movement direction by a predetermined region for calculating a forecast value of the motor load value forecasted relating to the door movement direction based on the motor load value of the sampling region corresponding to the predetermined door position and the motor load value of the present door position and for judging whether a pinch exists based on a deviation between the forecasted motor load value and the motor load value of the present door position. See claim 37, lines 21-28.

Although references such as Boisvert et al. disclose a pinch judgment means which determines if a pinch has occurred based on a forecast value of the motor load, they do not teach forecasting the motor load based on both the motor load value of a sampling region and the motor load value at the present door position.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Shigematsu et al. is cited for disclosing a predicting means for determining if a pinch has occurred.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

Art Unit: 3634

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
